KILLED BY VICIOUS DOGFISH.

Maine Fisherman Meets with Terrible Death.

The fishermen of Cundy's Harbor state that John Martin, who lived near the settlement, was out alone in his sailboat Saturday afternoon, harpooning a horse mackerel, and as he was standing in the bow of his boat throwing his harpoon, he either lost his balance or stuck the weapon into an extra large fish, and went overboard, uttering a cry of help.

When he came to the surface again he was being savagely attacked by dogfish. He uttered another pitiful cry for help, saying the dogfish were after him and he could not hold out much longer. The other fishermen in the neighborhood made a heroic attempt to save him, but were unsuccessful, and he sank before their eyes.

There seems to be a scarcity of small fish this season for the dogfish to prey upon, and as a result they are especially ravenous.

Big Fare of Swordfish.

Among the schooners at T Wharf yesterday was the sch. Angie Watson, which brought in the largest fare of swordfish of the season. She had 119 of the big fellows and got 7 1-2 cents a pound for them.
